The past year has been a rather depressing one for anime, as for the first time since I began this website I can't think of a single anime I've seen that I thought was "pretty good." Compared to the heavy doses of new anime releases that the last few years have been plagued with, I've actually found this year's anime to be rather dull and unexciting, even if it is a rather slow year for new anime releases. There's no shortage of good, reasonably popular anime. This year, we have Pokémon, so it would be easy to pick up on it, but that isn't the sole reason I've continued to write for this site. The real reason is that I'm still a supporter of the anime industry. It's been a pretty good year for fans of animation, and even if it is a slower year than years past, there are still a lot of good anime to check out, and some good new titles. So, as always, the top five anime of this year are: 1. Wolf's Rain The first anime I reviewed, Wolf's Rain, is back on my list. Although it wasn't the easiest anime to watch, Wolf's Rain has an interesting story, and a good cast of characters. The animation is beautiful, as it was with the previous Wolf's Rain series, and the music is just as catchy. Wolf's Rain is a well done series that is worth watching. 2. The Ambition of Oda Nobuna The second anime I reviewed for this list, The Ambition of Oda Nobuna, was one of the last three anime I watched this year, and it's another series I'll probably look back on and think "wow, that's some great anime." The animation is beautiful, and the character designs are very interesting and unique. The plot is entertaining and well developed, and the cast of characters are well developed. The voice acting and soundtrack are also good. All in all, The Ambition of Oda Nobuna is a very good anime that's worth watching.

3. Creamy Mami

The first Creamy Mami anime was not at all what I expected from the series,
